"Let Your Dollars Serve Canada" Is Slogan For Loan

"Let your dollars serve Canada" is the slogan for the appeal which the Dominion Government has launched to raise $150,000,000 "to promote the economic and financial welfare of Canada," as it is aptly put in the official circular containing details of the 1931 National Service Loan.

The offering of this considerable amount of funds to investors is one of the most important financial undertakings this country has ever witnessed certainly since the war days when Victory bonds were offered in large amounts and readily subscribed to save the country from foreign aggression.

Now the necessity has arisen of saving the country from economic consequences of an extraordinary character, and that the public will respond with the same promptness as unquestioned as when Canada stood on the verge of a cataclysm in the darkest days of the Great War.

Owing to world wide conditions, economic problems are confronting Canada, which require the public to respond with the same promptness and in the same measure as when Canada faced the darkest days of the Great War. That is why the present appeal for funds is being made.

One of the important features of this issue is that the public will receive a little more than 5 per cent. on their investment. The bonds are being issued to mature at the end of five years according to the wishes of investors. The five year bonds are priced at 99, and the ten year maturity at 98. Both classes can be obtained in denominations of $500 and $1,000 but the five year bonds can also be obtained in $100 lots, which will appeal to people of modest means.

The interest rates are May 15th and November 15th, the interest rate starting to accrue from Nov. 15th, 1931. Fully registered bonds of large denominations running up to as high as $100,000 are also obtainable with the interest payable on these direct to the holder by Government cheque.

All the banks in Canada and their branch offices are authorized to accept subscriptions as well as all recognized bond dealers throughout the Dominion.

General feeling in well-informed financial circles is that there will be adequate response on the part of the investing public to make this issue a great success. There is profound confidence among bankers and other leaders in the realm of finance, that Canadians can be depended upon to back up their country with their money when call is made for their assistance.

That there is a large amount of money awaiting favourable opportunity for investment in a safe class security, such as a Government bond, is unquestioned. The public have savings in the various banks aggregating upwards of $1,500,000,000. This total approximates an increase of $400,000,000 over the figures of a year ago, which goes to show that the public are displaying pronounced habits of thrift, one of the healthiest signs possible for any country to exhibit.

Besides this source of purchasing power, it is stated on good authority that trust companies hold a substantial reserve of funds which would come into a review in connection with just such an offering of the Dominion of Canada is making through the Department of Finance at Ottawa.

These are encouraging factors which ought to crown the offering with success if the public at large second the efforts of financial organizations of the country.

Ice making started at the local tank over the weekend. From 11 o'clock on we are going to have enough ice to last through the winter, and the cold weather to make the ice alright this winter was taken into the house, but was not used.

The Second Ward party was held on Friday night and in view of the cold weather, a good crowd was present and had a very enjoyable time.

The weather has been very erratic the past two weeks. On Saturday a cold wind blew from the south nearly all day and reached nearly hurricane proportions early in the evening. Sunday morning was clear and looked like a Chinook, and then snow commenced falling about 3:30 Sunday afternoon, although the weather remained warm and pleasant.

EXPERT OPTICAL SERVICE

MR. A. MELVILLE ANDERSON, OPTOMETRIST, of Anderson and McLean, Sight Specialist, Calgary wishes to announce his regular visit to the RAYMOND PHARMACY on THURSDAY, DECEMBER 3rd. EYES EXAMINED, GLASSES FITTED.

The Service Loan of the Dominion of Canada, whereby the people of the Dominion will be asked to loan the Dominion $150,000,000 is expected to be oversubscribed according to the Hon. E. N. Rhodes Acting Minister of Finance. There is an advertisement regarding this loan in this issue. It will be worth reading.

A fire started in the home of Mrs. Jensen last Saturday morning that could have easily been a very disastrous one. A can of paint had been spilled down one of the furnace pipes and when the pipe heated up this caught fire and set fire in turn to a piece of wall board that was covering a hole where a register had been placed. An alarm was sent in, but "Mutt" Ralph, who lives near by went over and discovered the cause of the blaze, and it was under control before the fire engines arrived. The chemical extinguishers were taken into the house, but were not used.

Beet Pay Day Next Week

The beet farmers of Southern Alberta will have another pay day toward the latter end of next week when approximately $200,000 will be paid out as the second payment on this year's crop. The sugar content of the beets is high running around 18 per cent and it is more than likely that an additional payment will be made when the run is over and final figures checked.

The beets that were stored have practically all been delivered to the yards now and brings the season's deliveries up to a little more than 100,000 tons at the factory. The mill is running nicely and every thing looks good for the most successful campaign, everything considered, the local mill has ever had.

There has been approximately 20,000,000 lbs. of sugar made so far on with good luck the run will not be over until the first part of the next year.

The new owners are pretty well satisfied with the present condition of things and are making a close study of conditions with a view toward further improvement in all phases of the industry.

Mrs. Ross Again Heads Local U.F.W.A.

At the regular meeting of the U. F. W. A., November 19th, Mrs. R. Ross was elected President by acclamation for the fourth successive year. Mrs. Della Wolf received the majority of votes for Vice-President and the following Board members were elected:—Mrs. M. M. Boyson, Mrs. Wm. Hague, Mrs. Nell Fisher, Mrs. A. J. Wiley and Mrs. Mary Wall. Mrs. Fern King was returned as Secretary. The new Board will commence its duties January 1st.

The study for the month was a paper on "Peace," given by Mrs. Hague. She gave a resume of the efforts throughout the world in the cause of peace.

It said if the world is to enjoy peace we must educate our children along these lines, and develop in them a new ideal of manhood, one who stands for peace among humanity.

The winners in the Peace essay contest, Sachie Iwasawa and Mac Hicken, were present, read their essays and were presented with prizes offered. Details of the contest appear elsewhere in this paper.

The next meeting of the U.F.W.A. will be devoted to Social Welfare, and Mrs. Viola Wing has been asked to occupy the time with a continuation of her lectures from the book "Training Young Children."

New Floor Being Laid

Following the Carnival held the first part of the month by the Raymond Second Ward for the main purpose of securing new flooring for the Recreation Hall. This order of flooring arrived last week, and on Monday of this week work was started at laying it. All the labor is being donated and it is the hope of the Bishopric to have the work finished for Ward Conference next Sunday.

Carpenters started early Monday morning, and Sanders were working right behind them so that the work could go ahead just as rapidly as possible. F. B. Rolfson was in charge of the work, and every possible effort was made to keep the floor clean and unused until it could be finished up, and undamaged by tracking and sand being scattered around on it.

"PEACE"

(By SACHIE IAWASAWA)

Peace! A word which means to men kind more than one may realize. Without it no one knows what may become of us. Peace is essential in every home and in the nation as well, in order to maintain happiness and prosperity.

True understanding is Peace. It is the first thing a boy or girl is taught in their homes. At the head of the home as in the school there are officers to govern their members. They see that every thing is done orderly and as a result peace is maintained.

Lack of understanding in the home or in the nation often leads to destruction. Since there was a lack of mutual understanding between Germany and the rest of the world it resulted in the World War. This war destroyed ten million lives and hundreds of millions worth of property. The world is still burdened by the terrible debt the war caused. The burden not only fell to the one who caused it but to the innocent as well. So without Peace civilization could not exist, and all progress and prosperity would cease.

Peace is not only for one's individual happiness but for the happiness of the world as well. Because of peace and understanding between the ancient inhabitants of the earth, the world has progressed and developed to what we now have; otherwise we would still be living in caves and doing many other things which now seem to us very disagreeable.

Jesus, our savior came to this world to give us peace. He taught us to understand Him and others in the true

A Big Snow Storm

Starting Tuesday night and continuing almost steady until Thursday morning covered the country with a pretty white blanket of snow from 2 or 3 inches deep to 2 or 3 feet where it has dripped.

Most of Wednesday morning the wind blew pretty strong and while it kept the grades clear where they were high, it piled it in the bar pits in liberal quantities. During the afternoon and evening the wind died down and the snow laid on the roads, but it was light and except in the odd place or two roads were good and the gravelled highway exceptionally open. The weather was mild all through the storm.

sense of the word. So if we are to have peace and happiness we must strive to follow His teachings. We must also strive to have mutual understanding between one another and between nation and nation for the betterment and advancement of the world. Peace therefore is a goal for the welfare and happiness of mankind.

Growing Selection and Preparation of Grain and Seed for Exhibition

(By H. ERMANN, TRELLE, Copyright 1931) Article No. 8

SELECTING FOR COLOR

Seed will ever remain "The Mystery of Life." It makes no difference how the appearance may be distorted or changed it will still rear a recognized progeny so long as there is a spark of vitality to kindle the new life; and that new life may be made to reproduce as different as is daylight from darkness when the "miracle" seed drops into a different soil or is caressed by a changed climatic condition.

This yearly change may go on indefinitely, then after years we may return the progeny of the original seed back to the soil and climatic conditions identical with that from which we started. Presto! True to nature, the magic seed will again reproduce true to the original, identical in kind and appearance for all practical seed and commercial purposes.

May we add a thought which suggests itself at this time, in our age of commercialization. This natural trait of reproduction in plant life may be taken advantage of, commercially and scientifically, to a far greater extent than at present. We know that an importation and planting of seed grown upon land of high vitality, and disease free, will control in some cases, which thought and research is centered on the solution of the destructive, pathological conditions, will even wipe out a widespread disease, or constitutional weakness, in any defined plant life, in almost any extensively cultivated area.

How sadly international boundaries and man-made laws, and even lack of national initiative, form barriers among sections of our homeland, as well as between us and lands which are foreign. There is no reason why these internal or international handicaps should not be removed. The benefits—permanently and socially—are natural, and what an advance this would be for agricultural betterment especially for the seed trade this would be for agricultural betterment of the whole world over. Much time and anxious consideration should be given to this economic and international phase of agriculture at the coming of the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference.

The eyes of the world will be focused on the results of this great world gathering as an indicator. The distribution of prizes will be, a business barometer pointing to those parts of the globe where reliable and quality seed production is at its best.

Nature never tells a lie. She is absolutely dependable, frank, and honest. An outstanding or collective win will mark definitely any community or any land area, in which the winner may live. It will also be a business stimulus and a lasting advertisement towards the marketing of the winning seed commodity.

A individual prize winner will receive greater benefit if associated with other winners for the same kind of seed from the same district. Organized effort has not yet failed to outshadow individual brilliancy.

The World's Grain Exhibition and Conference will be the first occasion in the history of agriculture where a program will be passed up in recognition of effect in mass production, and the world.

At this time it is good to recall the prospective exhibitor to take his chance with a couple of the best kinds of seed which will identify his community and prepare them well rather than expend energy with a more varied assortment and thus, perhaps not get any place at all.

The writer starts out with one exhibit which took five years to make, then three before it felt safe to launch out with more; and, in all frankness, he has never yet prepared a sample which could not be further improved.

Over enthusiasm is a dangerous weapon if not wisely handled at this

CAMPUS CAPERS

After much arguing and throwing the Canuck Candidate, Miss Viola LaMarr was voted as Premier for the ensuing year. The Ministers were assembled and our First Parliament session was held last Thursday. The Governor-General's speech from the throne was denounced by the opposition, and the debate waxed hot and furious for while till the question was put and the motion of acceptance carried. The opposition seemed very strong on votes and we think that the Governor-General will create peers.

The Cabinet Ministers are:—Bruce Galtbrith—Minister of Boy's Athletics. Viola LaMarr—Minister of Girl's Athletics.

Zelco Palmer—Minister of Finance. Elsie Mack—Minister of State. Frank Weaver—Minister of Publicity. Willis Taylor—Minister of Justice. Lorraine Smith—Sergeant-at-Arms. Margaret Roberts—Minister of Foreign Affairs. Gertrude Redd—Minister of Social Welfare.

time; and how much more careful one must be when under conditions of WORLD competition. This man never lived who had no equal.

What kind of seed is the most difficult to prepare? This question is often put to the successful exhibitor. The writer would, unhesitatingly choose to prepare three samples of wheat to one of oats.

Considering the expenditure of nerve energy, and the range of manipulation and care required, from the time the seed is selected in the field up until the sample is placed before the judges, the writer would arrange the different kinds and varieties of seed in the following order: Oats, (early Alaska variety the most difficult), six rowed barley, timothy, rye, two rowed barley, alfalfa and clover, flax, winter and spring wheat, Durum wheat, hullless barley, Western rye grass, beans and peas, sunflower, and, easiest of all, corn on the cob.

But arranged in order of economic and commercial importance, the line up would look much different. Wheat easily tops this list with spring wheat as king; and then the others would be arranged somewhat as follows: oats, corn, barley, rice, rye, alfalfa, clover, grass seed, flax, beans, peas, sunflower, etc. etc.

Judging from the above graduated lists one may quite fairly conclude that the kinds of seed which are given the most spectacular recognition at times, are not by any means those which require the most energy and patience to prepare.

Lucky is the World's Show exhibitor who combines color with purity and true type in a sample of strongest vitality.

Color is mostly a deciding factor in seed showmanship. There is, however, a marked difference between a display of grain prepared to create a

WHAT IS YOUR PAPER WORTH?

We often wonder just how much our efforts at getting out a paper in this community are appreciated by our readers. We are not asking for any bonquets we expect none. But it is question forces itself upon us at times. We go on from week to week, endeavoring to give the happenings of the people of our community, endeavoring to make a resume of important news events of the day which of course must be brief. We try and inform the people of coming events when we are in possession of the information, and in this column, we endeavor to boost the things of the district, and call attention to matters of importance that are about to take place. Of course we all, if we didn't we would cease to be human.

It costs real money to get the paper out each week, and the support of the local business houses who advertise in our paper is a possibility. But there is also the matter of subscription, and if we judge the value of the paper to our readers, by the looks of some subscription accounts then it is not worth very much. Here we are at the end of the year, and our subscription accounts remain in the red, and their owners never even take the trouble to recognize a notice and tell us when they will or why they don't pay the bill. Maybe they are in financial difficulty, and have to be cashed. Well you are not the only one who has these troubles and a bit of cooperation, and letting us know the why and wherefore would be appreciated. Some let their accounts run on, and then when we get a little persistent in the demands for a payment we are berated because we kept the paper going. Well how are we to know. The paper comes each week to your home, if you don't get it some one else does and rarely if it is not wanted, it would be a small item to phone, or write a line and let us know. We try and be honorable in these matters. We try and make the paper worth two dollars a year, and if we fail in your estimation, then we expect to have your subscription cancelled but even then a little help from you or a suggestion as to how to better our columns, might be beneficial to both you and us.

Occasionally too, we have the person who refuses the paper from the office. This is alright. We have no kick but we think that when this is done the subscriber would at least come in and pay his arrears and leave it with a good taste. In our mouths instead of causing us some unpleasant thoughts at this way of doing business. We could go on in this manner for some time but this is enough.

Now, just one more thing. This business of newspaper revenue is advertising. When we give space away, we give away money as far as we are concerned. There is not a very big line between advertising and news, and when things come up of general interest and where no one is going to cash in on it, we try and give the item fair publicity.

We appreciate the efforts of all our readers and those who contribute items that they know of, to make the sheet more interesting to a greater number. After all this co-operation is what makes communities worthwhile and united, to be interested in each other's welfare. We try and represent the district to the very best advantage, and while we are not always in accord with everyone and with every one's ideas we endeavor to do the things that will be best for the district.

We hope to carry on and we hope that our subscribers will not forget in the payment of bills and try and spare us a few dollars to tide us over until we all get back to prosperity and feel the thrill of being able to spend a dollar without feeling that we are robbing Peter to pay Paul.

Thank You,

SUNSHINE RELIEVES ALBERTA SUFFERING

Never before in the history of Alberta were the needs greater in respect of relief of suffering than they are today. Through no fault of their own, thousands in the city and the country feel the lack of employment and lack of farm products.

An organization that has functioned for nineteen years to relieve distress is the Calgary Herald Sunshine Society. It operates throughout the whole year.

During July, August and September, no less than 7,000 individuals, mainly children, were assisted by Sunshine. In October, 2,421 individuals were similarly helped. With winter weather the number naturally increases.

There are 6,000 unemployed persons in Calgary. Many come from various parts of the province. Country needs are looked after as well as those in the city. Sunshine appreciates assistance of any kind which in money, grain, clothing or food, potatoes, vegetables, almost any kind of farm product will be gladly received.

Those who wish to help are invited to communicate with Sunshine care of the Calgary Herald.

Monday was almost a Chinook but the warm wind didn't get going.

With the gravelled road in good shape all the time and spare time to be used up, a great many local people are going to the Temple quite frequently. There may be those who still query the gravelled highway but most people fully appreciate it, and feel that it was money well spent when it was constructed.

The Genealogical Committee had charge of the Sunday evening program in the Second Ward, which was held last Sunday night instead of the first Sunday night as Ward Conference was being held then. The speakers were D. L. Gathrath and S. J. May who both spoke on Temple Work and Salvation for the dead, and many numbers were contributed by Oliver McLean who sang a Vocal Solo, and a Chorus from the Gleaner Girls of the Ward.

ALICE STEVENS' HOME SERVICE

A Service Created to Assist Canadian Homemakers
Conducted by Alice Stevens, B.Sc., M.F.

CAN YOU MAKE TENDER FLAKY PASTRY?

Pie and pastry are frowned upon by many food specialists. One reason for this is that pie is not used wisely. A rich dessert like pie should not be served at the end of a heavy meal. Pie should not figure very largely in the diet of sedentary people as their activity is not sufficient to prevent. Pastry should be avoided in the diet of children. Despite all these restrictions, pastry can be used provided that it is used in wise combinations by people who are doing active work.

Tender flaky pastry is more easily digested than soggy pastry. There is no question as to which is more pleasing. Practice is required to make flaky pastry but there are a few simple rules which will help the pie maker.

Temperature is one of the most important points. The ingredients should be chilled. The sudden change of temperature into the hot oven causes the pastry to expand and the water to change into steam. That is what makes the pastry tender and flaky. There is no leavening agent added as in the making of cakes.

Too moist a dough is one of the most common causes of pie failure. The usual proportion is $\frac{1}{4}$ cup fat and $\frac{1}{4}$ cup water to one cup flour.

The flakiness of pastry is increased by proper manipulation. Work in the fat so that the fat and the flour will form layers. Try to work in as much air as possible. The fat must be worked in with the finger tips. This is a quicker method than cutting it in with a knife but has the disadvantage of warming up the ingredients with the heat of the hands.

In making puff pastry, butter is used as the fat. The salt is washed out of the butter first. The pastry is kept at a low temperature.

Many people find that they get better pastry by working in only half of the fat and rolling the remainder over the pastry and rolling it in. Roll out the pastry and roll it with a part of the fat. Fold over a half a layer at a time. Repeat this several times and this will give a flaky and rolling texture to the layers of the pie.

In making apple pie, the apples may be cooked and then added to the raw crust. But many can be used raw because the apples are already cooked. There is frequently trouble with the undercrust of an apple pie being soggy. A strong undercrust in the oven helps to overcome this. Many deep apple pies are made without an undercrust. Mix a little flour with the sugar sprinkled over the apples. This helps to absorb the surplus juice.

PLAIN PASTRY

1 cup flour
One fourth teaspoon salt
One-fourth cup fat
Cold water (about 1-2 cups)
Sift the flour and salt. Cut in the shortening. Add the cold water and roll.

APPLE PIE

4 or 5 apples
1-3 cup sugar
1 teaspoon butter
Spice

Line pie plate with paste. Peel and cut the apples into very thin slices. Sprinkle with sugar and spice and dot with butter. Moisten the edges of the undercrust. Cover with the upper crust which has had some cuts made in it. Press edges together. Bake 40 to 45 minutes in a moderate oven.

Have you got your mince meat made yet for your mince pies this winter? Christmas will soon be here and it is time now that the mince meat was made. As you know there is mince meat and mince meat. Would you like to get a recipe for good mince meat? I have a recipe that I can recommend very highly. Use the coupon below.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Eat foods which give exercise for the teeth, such as whole grain products.

Grate cheese quickly; use the meat chopper.

To cook liver, soak in cold water for one hour or in boiling water for five minutes. Then roll in flour and cook.

Dear Alice Stevens:

THE REGISTERED COCKEREL

A FACTOR IN REDUCING COST OF PRODUCTION

(Experimental Farms Note)

Cost of production is of vital importance in every branch of farming today, and the cost of producing market eggs or breeding stock will determine to a very great extent the success or failure of many engaged in the poultry industry. Reducing cost of production does not mean the use of cheap or inferior foods or the purchase of inferior breeding stock.

On the contrary, it means the use of the best quality feeds, judiciously fed, to flocks which have been culled of all undesirable birds, both males and females. Breeders must not be tolerated as they are the direct means of increasing cost of production.

In the attempt to improve the quality of breeding stock the poultry man should give first consideration to the male bird which heads the breeding pen. The purchase of cheap males of unknown or questionable breeding should be avoided. Too much attention cannot be exercised in this regard as production of eggs is transmitted directly through the male to his progeny. It can be seen quite readily that if the egg production of 100 pullets can be increased from 125 eggs per year to 150 or 160 eggs per year that the two or three dozen eggs extra per bird from 100 pullets would mean considerable revenue. Cost of production per dozen is decreased directly as the cost of production is increased.

Registered cockerels are the cream of production bred poultry. They herit 3 very desirable attributes: the characters for high egg production, large eggs, and mature parenage on the dam's side. Every poultry breeder realizes the very great difference between the chicks from hens and those from pullets. In addition to the foregoing, registered cocks are always passed by a government inspector as to physical characters, breed type and color before being registered. Inspection never takes place until the male bird is six months old, so that only large developed birds secure registration.

Head your breeding pen for 1932 with a registered male. These registered birds are now available in unlimited quantities. Write the poultry division Experimental Farm, Ottawa for further information about Registered Males and where they can be secured.

Barley is widely used for many different purposes, and of all the coarse grain varieties, has perhaps the most extensive range of shape, size, and variation in color rivaling the rainbow.

Here a sample may appear ever so spectacular but prove to be a type which is only of secondary importance in economic adaptation.

For seed purposes, a matting barley for instance, need not necessarily appear starchy.

The more virtuous and translucent barley kernels appear when light is

ESSAY CONTEST
BACHELOR IWAASSA AND MAC HICK-
EN WINNERS IN PEACE
CONTEST

After careful scrutiny the three judges of the Peace essay contest, sponsored by the U.F.W.A. gave a decision of equal merit to Spiche Iwa-assa and Mac Hicken, both students of the Ninth Grade.

The essay submitted by Miss Iwa-assa was very well thought out and practically without mistakes. Master Hicken's essay contained more material but needed correction and reconstruction in several places so the two prizes were divided equally between these two contestants. The essays as they will appear in the "Recorder" are in the corrected form.

The following six students were given honorable mention. Alice Snow, Gabrielle DeMeester, Olive Jensen,
Mary Hervey, Jessie Miller and Bryce Gibbs.

The U.F.W.A. hopes to make this contest an annual affair as part of the educational peace program for the young people of Raymond.

McIntyre Hatching Co. at Magrath was a heavy winner in the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto with their Hereforda. They were first in the carlet class with the C.P.R. Central Farm Coaldale winning second and third.
The McIntyre stock won first in group of three and Reserve Championship in Grade Steer Class. A number of other prizes at the Toronto Royal also came to Alberta people.

the color, the heavier the weight per bushel, and greater are the possibilities of vigorous germination.

A large, high colored out may be lacking in agreeable proportion, or it may not possess that true shine which only goes with a thin skinned and well matured kernel, weighing high to a measured bushel.

The mass color of a sample may appear most attractive from a distance but a close up examination of the individual kernels may show too great a variation, one to the other.

It is the balancing up of the distinct appearance along with that of the close up kernel symmetry, one to the other which evolves a winning color.

Can color be controlled without extensive hand-picking? Yes, in at least 3 important ways. First, by selection in the field at harvest time.
For example, one may quite accurately tell in advance where wheat will be most free from starch, or color variation, by studying the color of the straw at the band line, in reflection to kernel, so plainly seen on the wall of the wheat fields as the binder cuts around the field. The writer hesi-tated to suggest this color control observation in an earlier article, lest some may go astray, as it takes more than a year of practice to enable the prospective exhibitor to make a success of a method such as this will require much experience.

Second, by the control of filling sizes in screens. After careful observation of any sample of seed, one may usually figure out some exact size of screening that will control an agreeable shade in color, or that will eliminate some off color due to blight or disease, or other damage variations.

It is almost axiomatic to find these variations in the thin kernels, or in the two extremes—the over size or the under size shapes and sizes.

In coarse grains there is a very definite relation among plumpness, size, maturity and color. For example when ripe ball, or excessive starch is found in wheat, one may be assured that three quarters of it is in the kernels below the average size.

Then again most coarse grains (oats for example) ripen from the top of the head down. The color changes with the maturity, and the kernels are also graduated in size from the smallest on the top to the largest at the bottom.

So that if one cuts oats when the color is just right at the bottom, the smaller, off-colored kernels at the top.

Third, by controlled air velocity,
may be sieved out.
In any case where there is an extreme variation in density due to under maturity, sterility, insect damage blight or other accidental abnormalities in nature, there is likewise a corresponding, objectionable variation in color.

A controlled air blast will get rid of most of these, and the result is more uniformity in color, and a surprising increase in weight per bushel. This applies to almost all seeds which retain their hulls.

The true and best color of any sample of seed is always found in the "happy medium" size.

The next article will include a discussion on hand-picking.
